The Denver Fringe Festival has become a cherished part of the local arts ecosystem involving hundreds of artists and creatives, dozens of local businesses and thousands of active, adventurous audience members.

In six years our innovative annual arts festival has:

- Attracted over 1,200 creatives
- Presented 293 original shows
- Paid out $200,000 to performers
- Engaged 22,000 audience members

SPONSORSHIP

As a 501c3 arts organization, we rely on sponsorship and in-kind support to build the most expansive festival possible and keep ticket prices accessible so more of our community can experience live performing arts.

SPONSORSHIP

Supporting sponsors $500-$1,500

Innovating sponsors $5,000+

Presenting sponsors $50,000+

All sponsor logos are featured prominently on banners, posters, programs, t-shirts and the Denver Fringe website, social platforms and e-newsletters. Sponsors receive a VIP festival pass and are invited to all special events.

IN KIND DONATIONS

We're seeking donations of food and beverages from local restaurants to enhance our opening night kickoff party and provide extra perks for our hard-working venue managers and tech staff.

COMMUNITY

Our audiences are young, involved, adventurous and active on social platforms. The Fringe is all about building community — from our artists and audiences to our venues and sponsors. We look forward to cultivating long-lasting relationships and continuing to enrich our local arts scene.

THE DENVER POST

Denver's Fringe Festival takes inspiration from Edinburgh

The five tenets of fringe festivals: open access, unjuried, uncensored, original work and the majority of ticket sales go to the performers
